DETAILED ACTION

1. Amendment filed on has been received.

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

2. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 1/21/040 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.
4. Claims 1-3 and 5-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Matsuo et al in view of Walenty et al.

Matsuo et al discloses: commonly controlling the wheels using a mechanical system with a transfer device and a equalizer (see figure 1).

Matsuo et al does not disclose controlling the wheels based on the state of slip of one of the wheels. Walenty et al teaches a parking brake system that controls the brake force based on the slip of the wheels, (see abstract). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to control the wheels based on slip as taught by Walenty et al in the system of Matsuo et al in order to provide a optimum braking force no matter the road conditions by the parking brake. Furthermore, Matsuo et al discloses a mechanically common controlled system. Therefore, the wheels must be controlled based on the state of one wheel since it is physically impossible to control the wheels separately. Furthermore, as is well known in ABS when commonly controlling two wheels, the brake force applied is based off the wheel with the greater slip since it is more likely to lock up thus causing vehicle instability.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed 1/21/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicants have amended the claims to include a stroke control. The examiner contends that the combination presented by the examiner previously has stroke control as an inherent feature and therefore maintains the rejection. The braking force in a cable device like Matsuo is controlled by the amount of cable that is retracted. Automatically controlling the force (As Matsuo does) involves automatically controlling how much cable is retracted.
